

Are you a future leader ?

At GSK we research, make and market innovative medicines, vaccines and consumer healthcare products that touch the lives of millions of people around the world. Our Future Leaders programme suits graduates who want a career with real purpose and who share our mission to help people around the world to do more, feel better and live longer.

We need future commercial teams to understand our patients and consumers and we need tomorrow's experts in research & development, manufacturing, marketing, finance, procurement, human resources and etc. to achieve outstanding business performance.

We're meeting some of the world's biggest healthcare challenges. And we need you to make it happen.

Future Leaders Programme 2017

Our Future Leaders need ambition, commercial awareness and a self-motivated, proactive approach. We're looking for clear, effective communicators who can quickly build a rapport with a wide range of people. It's also important that you can adapt to change and keep focused when the pressure is on. While you have the drive and confidence to trust your own judgement, you're a real team player who actively collaborates with others. In addition, you'll need an analytical mind, a talent for multi-tasking and the ability to influence others.

For this programme we are particularly keen to consider NEW FRESH GRADUATES with degree in Medicine, Pharmacy, Finance, Business (Economics, Marketing, Sales, and Management), Psychology, Human Resources, Communications, Logistics, etc.

We ask for commitment and passion. And we give all you need to start your career as a future leader.
